

Steven Bostel

Program Manager
Spaceport Development at Space Florida

Steven Bostel serves as the Program Manager for Spaceport Development at Space Florida, where he is responsible for planning, project management, data analysis and relationship development to help shape the future of Florida's spaceports. Over the last 15 years Steven developed a passion for planning the future of transportation, at times tasked with forecasting 20 years into the future. He has served in several project management roles throughout his career, most recently with the Space Coast Transportation Planning Organization, where he coordinated data analysis and plans development which required extensive stakeholder involvement and coordination. Outside of the office, Steven enjoys spending time outdoors with his wife and 5-year-old son, golfing, fishing, and playing ice hockey.